Programs, Curriculum, and the Artemis Approach

THE FOUR PILLARS

Every student masters four foundational pillars:

Epistemology: How we know what we know. Knowledge creation, validation, revision. Distinguish knowledge from belief, evidence from assertion.

Computational Thinking: How to reason with and about algorithms. Not just programming but logical frameworks underpinning all digital systems, data science, and AI.

Global Systems: How interconnected systems shape the world. Economics, geopolitics, climate, public health as interacting complex systems.

Creative Expression: How to communicate vision and insight. Writing, visual design, data storytelling, public reasoning.

PURPOSE LEARNING

Students declare a Mission, not a major. A Mission is a real-world problem the student intends to solve. This transforms education from passive acquisition to active, purpose-driven inquiry.

PROGRAMS OF STUDY

Program	Level	Focus
African Studies	UG	Arts, history, cultures, politics of Africa
Computational Sciences	UG	Algorithms, AI, data science, quantum
Cognitive Science	UG	Consciousness, neuroscience, AI
Economics & Development	UG	Global systems, financial inclusion
Environmental Systems	UG	Climate adaptation, regenerative design
Comparative Literature	UG	Cross-cultural narrative, digital media
Philosophy & Ethics	Grad	AI ethics, governance, traditions
Urban Design	Grad	Sustainable cities, adaptive reuse
International Law	Grad	Refugee law, global governance
Neuroscience	Grad	Neural correlates, neurodiversity
Quantum Computing	Grad	Quantum algorithms, error correction
Public Health	Grad	Community health, traditional + modern

COMPETENCY-BASED GRADING

No letter grades, no class rankings. Students build a portfolio of demonstrated competencies. Adaptive Paced Learning adapts to each student's rhythm.

FACULTY

2,000 faculty across all disciplines, selected for academic distinction and mission alignment. Apply:
